MANAGER'S REVIEW

Like so many, it was with great sadness that we learnt about the death of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II. A remarkable woman, she was an inspiration to us all and her steadfast leadership and sense of duty throughout her long reign will forever be remembered as her eternal legacy. We mourn her passing but celebrate her incredible life.

Investment background

The UK market, as measured by our benchmark (MSCI United Kingdom IMI index), declined 2.1% over the month. Markets took a round-trip during the month, with a first half bear market rally driven by expectations of a Fed pivot extinguished on hawkish central bank rhetoric in the second half and further rises in energy costs. With the exception of natural gas, most commodities declined in the month and long duration equities underperformed as rates moved back towards recent highs post Fed Chair Powell reaffirming his "unconditional" commitment to tackle high inflation at Jackson Hole.

Strategy update

Performance

The fund declined 5.1%¹ in August versus -2.1% by its comparator benchmark, the MSCI United Kingdom Investable Markets index².

Aveva was up strongly (18.8%) in the period following news that Schneider Electric was considering a possible offer for the remaining 41% of Aveva (a formal offer must be made by 21 Sept). This is a frustrating opportunistic move from our perspective with Aveva's valuation depressed by the complex transition to a software as a service business model which temporarily masks the group's future earnings power.

Autotrader was up 4.4% in the period. We suspect the market is anticipating positive catalysts at the upcoming capital markets day on the 6th of September, specifically more detail regarding the growth opportunity in digital retailing.

WPP fell 15.8% despite interim results being ahead of expectations as concerns around cyclical earnings risk dominate sentiment on the stock. The ad-cycle makes it challenging to identify the structural growth trend fuelling the bear thesis that the agencies are likely to have a 'GDP minus' type growth profile going forward, a view we do not subscribe to as we think agencies are more relevant than ever in helping brands to navigate an increasingly challenging media landscape.

Sanofi was hit by concerns around possible Zantac litigation financial liabilities and the failure of a key pipeline asset compromising its defensive growth credentials and driving the shares down -10.5% in the period. We subsequently decided to exit our position.

888 Holdings dropped 16.1% over the period following interim results with guidance for the second half below expectations. Financial leverage following the acquisition of William Hill is high but there is a credible path to deleveraging given strong cash generation and material deal synergies. In our view, the current depressed rating, a function of an ongoing lack of regulatory clarity in the UK market discounts an improbably high cut to future UK online earnings.

Essentra, a special situation investment case where the break-up of the business should extract value reported strong operating momentum in its Components and Filters businesses. Despite this, the shares declined 20% in the period which we attribute to a lack of reported progress on the disposal of the filters business. Even if we assume a depressed rating for Filters in our sum-of-the-parts valuation, there is attractive upside potential.

Drax shares were down 17.9% in the period, driven by the increasing likelihood of electricity market reform together with negative comments from a UK government minister regarding Drax's biomass strategy. The dynamic around power market reform is an interesting one as whilst mid-term earnings upside might not materialise, long-term earnings are likely to be more secure in the event of intervention. The UK government has subsequently confirmed that it supports biomass energy to provide power in Britain and we propose that it is the relative benefits over other forms of non-intermittent power generation (predominantly gas, coal and nuclear) that are most relevant.

Finally, Capital & Counties' hospitality, leisure and retail tenants are exposed to higher energy costs. Valuations, estimated rental values and in-place rents are still well below pre-pandemic levels and the discount is extended at the equity level with the current price to net tangible asset value well below 1x for an irreplaceable, prime West Central London portfolio that is structurally undersupplied.

Zero weights in BP, HSBC, British American Tobacco and an underweight position in Shell were also negative contributors in the period, whilst our zero weight in GSK was a material positive contributor in the period.

Activity

We exited Sanofi – as detailed above.

Outlook

Sentiment towards UK equities is very depressed. A fiscal bailout to protect consumers and small and mid-sized businesses is likely but the key challenge will be ensuring fiscal policy doesn't conflict with tighter monetary policy focused on fighting inflation. Fears of a downturn are creating significant valuation dispersion between cyclicals and defensives. The premium for certainty has moved higher and this creates a great opportunity for those with longer time horizons, willing to look through short-term earnings volatility.

Markets continue to move rapidly, and this is a good reminder to focus on stock selection with a balanced approach. We attempt to diversify our portfolios to protect against foreseen and unforeseen risks. We do this through our multi-factor PVT approach which enables us to invest in strong, cash generating companies at various stages of their corporate lifecycle.
